JOINT COMMUNICATIONS DEGREE/DIPLOMA (UW/RRC)

INTRODUCTION

The Department of Rhetoric, Writing, and Communications teaches both practical communicative skills and critical thinking about communicative texts and contexts. To prepare first-year students for success in university, our introductory courses provide instruction in academic writing. (Please see Course Listings for information about how these courses are numbered and organized in order to represent the disciplinary conventions associated with different fields of learning). To prepare more advanced students for careers in communications and for participatory citizenship, our upper-level courses combine practical instruction in writing and public speaking with attention to the history, theory, and analysis of rhetoric and communication. The Department also houses the Tutoring Centre and Computer Writing Lab, both offering a range of resources for students to develop their writing abilities and prepare assignments.

In addition to writing courses at the introductory level, the Department offers a 3-Year or 4-Year BA with a Major in Rhetoric and Communications. This program emphasizes the interpretation, evaluation, production, and precise editing of messages for a range of audiences, media, and purposes. Students in the Major practise writing in a variety of genres and read contemporary non-fiction, analyze visual and verbal arguments, trace the impact of print and electronic media on western culture, and—through the study of theory and close attention to textual practices—examine how ideology is embodied in discourse. Students with a BA in Rhetoric and Communications can enter graduate studies in such fields as Communications, Composition, Media Studies, and Rhetoric. They are also well prepared for public- and private-sector careers that depend on advanced analytical and communicative skills, especially in writing. We also offer a Minor.

Also available is a 4-Year Degree/Diploma in Communications, offered jointly by the University of Winnipeg and Red River College. The Degree/Diploma balances a well-rounded liberal arts education with applied and workplace training to prepare students for careers in Journalism, Public Relations, Advertising, or Broadcast Production. The Department offers a Certificate in Writing designed for students who wish to focus on honing their writing knowledge and practices. Since the courses required for the Certificate in Writing are also part of the Rhetoric and Communications degree program, they can be used toward a 3-year or 4-year BA, if students choose to continue their studies.

Requirements for the 3-Year and 4-Year BA, for the Minor, and for the Joint Program in Communications are described below.

Students interested in either the Rhetoric and Communications Major or the Joint Degree/Diploma Program should contact the Department (204-258-3865) for basic information. Students are also encouraged to seek advice from faculty members about appropriate courses. A number of courses at the 2000-level or above may be taken for credit toward a Major in English, or counted toward any degree as electives.

All EAL students who feel that they would benefit from extra attention paid to language learning should enrol in RHET-1115(6) Academic Writing: Extended (EAL).

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Academic Writing may not be used to meet the Humanities requirement. All upper level courses offered by the Department of Rhetoric, Writing, and Communications (with the exception of RHET-2530(3) Rhetorical Grammar) may be used to meet the Humanities requirement.

Students intending to transfer to the University of Manitoba should know that Academic Writing: Multidisciplinary, Academic Writing: Humanities, and Academic Writing: Links with the Disciplines fulfil the U of M requirement of 3 credit hours of Written English. However, Academic Writing does not fulfil the first-year English requirement for the U of M professional programs in Dentistry or Medicine, nor the Approved Arts Elective for Pharmacy.

COURSE LISTINGS

First Year Group

The Department of Rhetoric, Writing, and Communications offers multiple sections of its first-year courses in Academic Writing. Each section teaches the essential strategies for university writing and research: the discovery of topics, the arrangement of ideas, the assessment of audience and purpose, and the practice of effective editing. Problems with sentence construction, grammar, and punctuation are addressed as the need arises. Academic Writing is required for all students in the Rhetoric and Communications Major and the Joint Program in Communications.

NOTE: Only one 1000-level Academic Writing course may be used as credit toward graduation.

INTRODUCTORY 3 CREDIT HOUR COURSES

The options available to students taking the 3 credit hour version of Academic Writing fall into three general categories:

- Sections designed to prepare students for major fields of study (Academic Writing in the Humanities, the Social Sciences, the Sciences, or Business and Administration);
- Sections linked to introductory courses in specific disciplines (Academic Writing: Links with the Disciplines);
- Sections that take a multidisciplinary rather than a discipline-specific perspective (Academic Writing: Multidisciplinary).

The specific content and approach of each section vary according to the interests and expertise of individual instructors and according to students' needs.

Further information about these courses is available in the descriptions below. Students are advised to consult the Department or Academic Advisors for more details about individual sections of Academic Writing.

Note: Information about prerequisites, corequisites, and restrictions for all sections of the 3 credit hour version of Academic Writing follows the description of the different options.

We also offer the following 6 credit hour versions of
