

FACULTY OF ARTS

SOCIOLOGY

Sociology is a social science that uses theoretical and scientific methods of research to investigate the social world.

Sociology is an examination of the relations between the individual and society. Studying sociology can help you develop a “sociological imagination” which is a quality of mind that enables us to understand our own personal experiences as they are shaped by the society in which we live. Often referred to as the “queen of the social sciences”, sociology uses history, anthropology, philosophy, political science, psychology, economics, and statistics to understand the “social causes and consequences of human behaviour” and how and why certain ideas become popular and dominant during different social, economic, and historical time periods.

This program leads to a Bachelor of Arts degree (3-year, 4-year, or Honours) with a Major in Sociology. Students taking a degree in another Major may choose to add a Minor in Sociology as a secondary area of interest. Also available through the Sociology Department is a Research Methods Certificate.

SAMPLE CAREERS

Students who graduate with an undergraduate honours degree in sociology go on to advanced study in a variety of areas such as law, journalism, criminology, urban planning, labour relations, politics, environmental policy, demography, and gerontology. Others find employment in government and non-governmental organizations doing advocacy work, social scientific research, and teaching.

SAMPLE COURSES

Introduction to Sociology I: Concepts & Methods is a required first-year course that introduces the discipline of sociology. Topics include classical and contemporary sociological theory, quantitative and qualitative methodologies, and the foundational concepts of social structure, culture, and socialization.

Sociology of Families is a second-year course that examines the traditional nuclear family in Western industrialized societies. Topics include theories on families, dating, family formation, domestic work, domestic violence, divorce, single and step families. Gender perspectives are applied in this course.

Crime, Victimization, & Justice in Indigenous Communities is a third-year course that involves the study of crime, victimization, & justice in Indigenous communities including the various types of programs developed by Indigenous communities to facilitate culturally appropriate justice programs.

“As a Sociology graduate of The University of Winnipeg, I was able to apply the skills I learned to conduct research with the Correctional Service of Canada, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada, and as a Gladue report writer with Manitoba Justice. In my current role as Director at Circles of Support and Accountability, much of what I learned at the University has informed my work at this restorative justice initiative, which supports people to safely integrate into the community after incarceration.”

- Natalia Ilyniak (BA Honours)
