How does making lifelong friendships, having fun and building a robust resume sound?

Student Newsletter

Do these 3 things to be successful

To all first year students - welcome to the Faculty of Business and Economics! To our returning students, welcome back!

The Faculty of Business & Economics (FBE) sends a weekly newsletter to all of our students to keep you apprised of the events, scholarships, jobs, and other opportunities available to you.

We've asked our students, past and present, what some of the key factors are in being successful at University. Besides the obvious - study hard and sleep well - we've come up with three (out of several) things that could make a big difference in your life while a student.

Get Engaged!

The number one answer from past and current students is to get involved in student life and Faculty events as much as possible. The FBE has five active student groups that offer a variety of professional development, networking and learning opportunities and social events. Check out BASA (Business Administration Students' Association), FESA (Finance and Economics Student Association), UWIG (University of Winnipeg Investment Group), UWASA (UW Accounting Students Association) and JDC West to learn more about what they have planned for 2019-20! By becoming involved in the university community, you'll make lifelong friendships and be able to add valuable skills to your resume.

The FBE tries to make it easy for our students to get involved. We share opportunities in our weekly newsletter, on our social media sites, and on TV monitors throughout the Buhler Centre. The University of Winnipeg events calendar is also a great resource for academic dates, deadlines, health and wellness events and more.

Ask For Help

Student life can be stressful. The University has health and wellness supports available to you. UWinnipeg also tries to keep class sizes small, providing you the opportunity to get to know your professors. Check your course outlines for your instructors' office hours and ask for advice or additional support from them if needed. Form study groups, seek out tutoring (in the FBE, tutoring is run through the Golden Key Honour Society), and be proactive in your education. If finances are of concern, you may wish to look into experiential learning opportunities, like our Co-op Education Program that allows you to gain paid work experience in your field, or get in touch with the Awards and Financial Aid Office to see which scholarships, bursaries and/or awards you may qualify for.

The Department of Business and Administration, the Department of Economics and the Faculty of Business & Economics all have websites with lots of helpful information, including course maps, contact information for our staff and faculty, and FAQs.

Take Care of your Body

It's easy to ignore some of the basics when you're busy studying, running to classes, working, and trying to maintain a social life. Although there's times you'll feel the need to grab greasy fast food or quick sugar, you still need to fuel your body with nutrients and vitamins found in 'real' food to have energy, learn properly and stay healthy (especially in flu season)! Find ways to implement exercise during your day or take advantage of the free gym membership you're entitled to as a UWinnipeg student. It sounds simple and obvious, but the body is often the first thing neglected.
