External Training Opportunities

The Faculty of Graduate Studies Fall 2022 Workshop Series contains external training and professional development opportunities curated for our students.

More information about these opportunities is available below.

*Mitacs Training Courses

Mitacs offers FREE professional development training to advanced degree candidates and graduates, supplementing their education and research experience with the tools necessary to succeed in today's workforce. Some of the FGS picks are included in this schedule, and you can see their full range of offerings on the Mitacs Training Courses webpage.

To register for Mitacs training courses, create an account on the Mitacs Edge Portal using your UWinnipeg email address. For help, visit the Mitacs How to Register page or contact training@mitacs.ca.

Graduate and Postdoctoral Development Network (GPDN) Career Symposium for Graduate Students and Postdoctoral Fellows

The Graduate and Postdoctoral Development Network (GPDN) is hosting the 3rd annual Canadian Career Symposium for Graduate Students and Postdoctoral Fellows, October 25-27 aimed at professional development and career exploration. The symposium includes keynote addresses from David Mendes from Papa PhD, and Dan Munro and Creig Lamb of Shift Insights, and workshops on topics including Career Storytelling, Using Informational Interviews, Showing your Value, and more.

Full event details will be posted on the GPDN Career Symposium page by early Fall.

 CAGS Annual Conference: Future of Graduate Education: Toward Local and Global Relevance

The 60th Annual Canadian Association of Graduate Studies \(CAGS\) Conference, November 1-3, is a hybrid event which will include all of the elements traditionally featured at their in-person conference, as well as new opportunities to share, learn, and connect with colleagues and friends.

In-person participants will have the chance to listen to thought-provoking keynotes and plenaries, and to interact with a variety of panels, roundtables, and lightning talks dedicated to all aspects of graduate education.

For remote participants, CAGS is leveraging a sophisticated virtual platform to offer a wide range of synchronous and pre-recorded content, including panels and roundtables, workshops, and special guest speakers. Opportunities for networking and reconnecting with colleagues will be a feature of both the in-person and virtual conference experience.

Until September 9, 2022 graduate student and postdoctoral scholars attending virtually are eligible for the reduced early bird special registration rate of $45.00.
