COURSE DESCRIPTION

Introduction to Film studies various aspects of film: aesthetic, theoretical, critical, and practical. Through lectures, screenings, discussion, and practical filmmaking experience, students will learn the basic grammar of film and develop a deeper understanding of how movies work. The course takes an historical perspective, establishing the nature of what has come to be called the classical narrative film style and contrasting that style with realist and formalist alternatives. We will also be concerned with the idea of film as personal expression and the relationship of film to society.

REQUIRED TEXT

Richard Barsam, Dave Monahan, Looking at Movies: An Introduction to Film, (4th edition)

CLASS PARTICIPATION

Students are expected to attend screenings and participate in class discussion. Students are also expected to participate in the lab portion of the class which will be designated as the group film project and involves the group preparation and production of a short digitally-shot film. Students must attend all group pre-production meetings concerning their film shoots, assume a pre-production role in the project, attend every day of the shoot, and contribute to the editing of the film project. Further instructions for the group film project are forthcoming.

CLASS Demeanour

Classes begin promptly at 2:30 p.m. – please be on time. Persistent unexcused absences are subject to a grade penalty. Assignments handed in late are subject to a grade penalty, however I am willing to listen to reasonable excuses. Do not miss a class – mine or any other instructor's – because you have not completed an assignment on time. Instructions for the essay assignments are forthcoming.

Please do not conduct private conversations in class during screenings or class discussions or when the instructor is speaking.

Food and drink (water excepted) are not permitted in the classroom during class period.

Leaving the room before the end of class is disruptive. Should you need to leave a discussion before the end of the class, let me know ahead of time by either contacting me by phone or e-mail or seeing me at the beginning of class.

ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

You should acquaint yourself with the regulations regarding plagiarism, cheating, and examination impersonation as well as the rules for registration, withdrawals and appeals in the University of Winnipeg Academic Calendar for 2014-15 (on-line at <http://www.uwinnipeg.ca>).

STUDENT PARTICIPATION POLICY

Theatre is a communal art form in which a number of interdependent artists and crafts people co-operate to create a work of art. This fact is necessarily transferred to the learning situation, and is reflected in many of the Department's courses. Consequently, it is the Department's policy that students are required to: complete homework such as reading, line-learning, script analysis, prop lists, design drawings, etc.; attend classes; attend rehearsals both within and outside of class times; and, in short, to exhibit commitment towards the inevitably shared endeavours of our field of study.

Any student failing to fulfil these requirements is harmful to the progress of dedicated students and may, after due warning, be asked to withdraw from any individual Departmental course.

COURSE CONTENT NOTE

All Theatre and Film Classes

Dramatic Literature depicts a wide variety of human action, both elevated and base, public and private, physical and psychological, sexual and non-sexual, etc. The Department of Theatre and Film will not undertake to censor the subject matter of dramatic works.

Students who have concerns about dealing with the full range of content and style in drama/film are urged to discuss these concerns with the course instructor.
